

Inexact Restoration and its application to Bilevel Problems

Ana Friedlander

State University of Campinas, Brazil

We present the basic features of Inexact Restoration Methods for nonlinear programming and discuss the differences with other well established nonlinear programming techniques. We show that Inexact Restoration is a natural approach for solving Bilevel Programming Problems and present some applications in engineering problems.